QUALITY OF LIFE SERVICES

Our accommodation improvements drive efficiency, optimise space and improve safety behaviours and wellbeing

Every day, on offshore locations around the world, we provide support for people who find themselves living and working in extreme conditions, facing isolation, overcrowding, hostile weather and more. At Sodexo, our mission is to improve these people's lives by helping you to transform their demanding living conditions into a safe and comfortable environment, both on and off the job. Our people do this, it is our core competence and thanks to this we are number one in the world market for Quality of Life services.

We have the core strengths to achieve this:

- World class service culture
 Enabling you to improve your business performance and competitiveness, whether your business is global, across countries or local.
- Expertise in managing the unforeseen
 Our clients can expect the same level of standards, consistency, service delivery and innovation wherever they are in the world.
- Holistic approach to Quality of Life
 You need a healthy workforce. The efficiency of today's workforce is highly influenced by a feeling of wellbeing, both at work and at home.
- Innovation through consumer research
 We help you understand your offshore workforce's expectations through global consumer surveys, gaining industry wide feedback and knowledge. Through trending and data analysis we integrate unique insight into the solutions we build.

- Operating in an environment that fosters efficient working is a significant factor in achieving a step change in productivity, attracting and retaining talent and maintaining your position in the market.
- Our projects team will collaborate with you to realise the sustainable value that improved accommodation can bring.
- A dynamic, innovative and collaborative approach to delivering projects places us in a unique position to align our delivery with your safety and people values. Our Quality of Life offer includes wellbeing improvements, efficient use of space and a proactive approach to improving morale.

It's not enough these days to only provide food and a clean bed – there needs to be a much more all-encompassing support solution. Offshore staff needs to feel welcomed, safe, comfortable and engaged in their work environment. Meeting those needs has a positive impact on their well-being, job performance, safety behaviours, health and their families. Clients are looking for solutions that deliver positive outputs and have a positive impact on their business performance. Not just that, we can optimise bedding and significantly reduce project implementation time and costs; crucial as operators look to asset longevity and field decommissioning.
